

Chris Low
Chief Economist

Chris has twenty years experience tracking US and global economies, financial markets, central banks and fiscal policy as well as six years experience as a money manager, giving him a unique ability to distill economic events into information useful to investors.

Chris writes daily economic and market updates, weekly economic commentaries and regular economic forecasts. He is a frequent and popular speaker at national conferences and forums and is a member of the SIFMA's Economic Committee. Chris has been quoted in BusinessWeek, The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, and many other publications. He is a regular on CNBC, Bloomberg TV, and Fox Business Channel and is often heard on the radio.

Chris is a graduate of New York University.